Our Commitment

Harper Adams University is committed to fostering a community of respectfulness, positive relationships and experiences in an environment free of harassment, violence, exploitation and intimidation. All students have a part to play in developing this positive environment and a campus culture to be proud of.

The University is focussed on taking all necessary steps to address sexual violence, violent behaviour, racism, bullying and harassment and ensuring the rights and dignity of all members of the University community are valued and respected.

We recognise the devastating impact that sexual violence, violent behaviour, racism, bullying and harassment can have on individuals and their family and friends. The University promotes a culture in which incidents that threaten a positive student experience, will not be tolerated, inappropriate behaviours will be actively challenged and addressed. Bystander intervention, the act of intervening when another individual needs help, will be encouraged and promoted to ensure a positive, safe environment for all members of our community.

These negative behaviours jeopardise the mental, physical, and emotional wellbeing of those affected and risks the safety of our community. They diminish dignity and impedes access to educational, social, and employment opportunities and can cause lasting physical and psychological harm.

Our community expects that all interpersonal and professional relationships and interactions will be grounded upon mutual respect and open communication.

Our Duty of Care

We take very seriously our duty of care to our community. If a member of our community is a survivor of sexual violence, violent behaviour racism, bullying and/or harassment we will take steps to ensure their physical safety and general wellbeing and facilitate their access to appropriate specialist support, while respecting their feelings and decisions. We have a particular responsibility to encourage and support individuals affected by sexual violence, to come forward, disclose with confidence and seek help.

We recognise that such incidents may also constitute a direct infringement of the law. As such, the University recognises that we have moral, ethical, and legal obligations to address all infringements of this Policy statement.

Sexual Violence

What is Sexual Violence?

Sexual violence covers a broad range of inappropriate, unwanted behaviour (involving physical contact, action, words, of a sexual nature). It also extends to unwanted touching, stalking, harassment, abusive or degrading remarks or contact (including through social media).

Sexual violence can happen to anyone regardless of age, gender, race, sexual orientation, religion, class, or background.

Sexual violence includes any form of sexual activity that takes place without the other person's full and informed consent.

What is Sexual Consent?

Sexual consent is defined in legal terms, as agreeing by choice to engage in sexual activity and having the freedom and capacity to make that choice. Any sexual activity without consent is a crime, where only the perpetrator can be blamed. Consent requires the capacity to make a choice (including age and understanding) and being able to make that choice freely without constraint (including without intoxication, coercion or under the influence of drugs).

Sexual consent helps to build healthy, fulfilling and respectful relationships.

- Consent is a positive agreement between participants to engage in specific sexual activity
- Consent must be voluntary and cannot be coerced
- Consent may be withdrawn at any time and can never be implied or assumed
- Consent cannot be given by an individual who is substantially impaired or unconscious as a result of alcohol or drugs
- Consent cannot be given by an individual who is asleep or unaware
- Consent cannot be given by an individual who has been compelled by force, threat of force, or deception
- Consent cannot be given by an individual whose consent is impaired because of a mental or physical condition
- Any prior sexual activity or relationship, does not, in and on itself, constitute consent regardless of any previous sexual activity that has taken place on that occasion or at any other time

Assuming that the individual had both the freedom and capacity to consent, the crucial question is whether that person agreed to the sexual activity by choice. If they did not do so, and consent has not been given, this would be considered as sexual violence.

Support for Sexual Violence Survivors

Students who have experienced sexual violence are encouraged to make contact with the Student Services team. Trained staff are available to provide a caring, holistic 'wrap-around' service for survivors of sexual violence.

Student Services staff have close links with local Police (West Mercia), the local Sexual Assault Referral Centre (SARC) - The Glade 0808 178 2058, operating 24/7, specialist Independent Sexual Violence Advisors (ISVAs) - Axis 01952 586790, and the local GP Surgery, as well as in-house support. We encourage any student who has experienced or witnessed something, recent or historic, which has made them feel uncomfortable in any way, to seek support.

Student Services can provide:

Immediate and ongoing care and support: Referrals to counselling and medical services; safety planning; academic and workplace adjustments; self-care resources; advocacy; navigating resources;

Assistance with reporting and complaints: Assistance in making an informed decision about next steps should an individual choose to report to authorities within the university or to the police;

Provision of information: Provide up-to-date community resource information;

Education: Deliver education and awareness campaigns and work closely with the Students' Union to deliver this and encourage an understanding of both sexual consent and the importance of bystander intervention

Training: Ensure that key staff are appropriately trained to handle disclosures and refer students. This will involve in depth training for Student Services staff and light touch training for Student Wardens and Senior Tutors.

Responsibility for sexual violence statistics: Maintain non-identifying data on disclosures and report to the Senior Management Team on any incidents of sexual violence on campus.

Risk Assessment

In all cases of reported sexual violence, including referral by a third party, the University will discharge its duty of care by establishing the extent of any reported and identified breaches of its misconduct policies and thereafter by entering into a process of risk assessment to reduce the risk of future harm. This will consider the potential risks to the individual, their peers and the organisation. The University will take affirmative action to mitigate risks where sexual violence may be involved. This process is separate from disciplinary action.

Violent Behaviour

What is Violent Behaviour?

Violent behaviour is use of physical force or violence to inflict harm to others, to endanger the health or safety of another person or property, or restrict the freedom of action or movement of another person. Examples of violent behaviour include, but are not limited to:

- Unwelcome physical contact;
- Slapping, punching, striking, pushing, or otherwise physically attacking a person;
- Throwing, punching, or otherwise handling objects in an aggressive manner;

Violent behaviour also includes the threat of violence, as an expressed or implied threat to interfere with an individual's health and/or safety, and/or property, which causes a reasonable apprehension or fear that such harm or injury is about to occur. Examples of threatening behaviour include, but are not limited to:

- Direct or indirect threats of harm or injury;
- Words or gestures which create a reasonable fear of harm or injury;
- Prolonged or frequent shouting which creates a reasonable fear of harm or injury;
- Stalking an individual (see harassment);

Harassment

What is Harassment?

In general terms, harassment is described as unacceptable behaviour which can range from violence and bullying to more subtle behaviour such as ignoring an individual, with a view to isolate them. Harassment covers a range of behaviours, it subjects an individual or a group to unwelcome attention, intimidation, humiliation, ridicule, offence or a reduced feeling of self-worth. It is unwanted by the recipient and continues after an objection is made, although a single incident may be serious enough to constitute harassment and justify a complaint. Harassment can also have a specific meaning under certain laws, for instance, if harassment is related to sex, sexual orientation, race, religion and belief, age, gender reassignment, disability or pregnancy and maternity it may be unlawful discrimination and may also constitute a criminal offence.

Sexual harassment is defined as any unwanted physical, verbal or visual sexual advances, requests for sexual favours, and other sexually orientated conduct which is offensive or objectionable to the recipient. Sexual harassment can be unlawful discrimination. Most incidents involve the harassment of women by men but harassment of men by women, or between members of the same sex, also occurs.

Examples of sexual harassment include:

- uninvited and unwelcome physical contact;
- sexual innuendo and use of sexually centred expletives;
- unwelcome advances, attention, invitations or propositions;
- unwelcome or lewd references to a person's physical features, figure or dress;
- suggestive and unwelcome comments, looks, attitudes or jokes;
- sexist graffiti, the display of offensive pin-ups, suggestive or pornographic material;
- threats of failure or promises of success in exchange for sexual favours;
- electronic transmission of pornographic/degrading/indecent material;
- sexual violence (a severe and illegal form of sexual harassment);

Sexual harassment does not refer to occasional compliments of a socially acceptable nature. It refers to behaviour which is unwelcome and that is personally offensive to the recipient.

Racial Harassment

Racial harassment is conduct based on race, colour, nationality or ethnicity, which is offensive to the recipient. It can be unlawful racial discrimination and includes hostile or offensive acts or expressions by a person or group against another person or group, or incitement to commit such an act.

Examples of racial harassment include:

- derogatory name-calling or ridicule for cultural differences;
- verbal abuse and threats of physical attack;
- display of racially offensive material or graffiti;
- derogatory actions, statements, jokes, taunts or references to an individual's ethnic origin, customs, dress, diet, culture or religion;

Racism

What is Racism?

Racism is when an individual or group are treated differently or unfairly because of their race or culture. People can also experience prejudice, when a decision is made or opinion formed without knowledge, thought or reason, because of religion or nationality.

Racism takes many different forms. These can include:

- written or verbal threats or insults;
- damage to property, including graffiti;
- personal attacks of any kind, including violence;

- being treated differently or being excluded because of your race or culture;
- having people make assumptions about you because of your race or culture;
- racist jokes and discourse;

Racism exists in all races and cultures. If someone is abused or treated unfairly just because of their race, background or culture, this is racism - no matter where they're from.

Individuals can also be affected by racism that isn't directed at them, for example, if an individual hears someone discriminating against someone else's culture. Even though an individual may not be from that culture, they might still find hearing the discriminatory comments offensive.

Bullying

What is Bullying?

Bullying may be characterised as offensive, intimidating, malicious or insulting behaviour, an abuse or misuse of power through means intended to undermine, humiliate, denigrate or injure the recipient.

Examples of bullying behaviour include:

- unlawful violence such as physical blows;
- verbal abuse; shouting, sarcasm, derogatory or belittling remarks;
- persistently ignoring, excluding or patronising;
- setting up an individual for failure;
- Use of social media to single out, intimidate, belittle or isolate another;

Further Action

Disciplinary action

Any students accused of an offence, including allegations of sexual assault or rape, should be aware that any complaint, allegation or evidence of serious misconduct considered to constitute a criminal offence could be referred to the police. The University recognises that it is not placed to undertake a criminal investigation. It will, however, cooperate fully with any associated Police investigation and subsequent legal proceedings.

Where a matter is under investigation by the police, the University reserves the right to delay considering the matter under its own disciplinary procedures until the outcome of the police investigation is known. The University is not precluded from progressing its own disciplinary action, in line with the Student Disciplinary Policy, where police involvement is taking place (through interim measures such as suspension or exclusion, particularly if there is deemed to be a risk to students or staff, including reputational risk).

Actions under University Policy

Responsibility: Responsibility for risk assessment and disciplinary decisions in this context rests ultimately with the Vice-Chancellor, who delegates operations as necessary.

Disciplinary Procedures: Where disciplinary procedures are invoked, they will follow the process laid out in the University's Student and/or Staff Disciplinary Policy as appropriate. Complaints raised by a student or staff member against a student, will be considered in line with the Student Disciplinary Policy. A complaint raised by a student against a member of staff, will initially be considered within the Student Complaints Policy and Procedure, but may also be progressed through the Staff Disciplinary Policy, after the initial complaint has been made.

Criminal Offences: The University will not normally report an incident of sexual violence to the police without the complainant's permission. However, in reference to the University's Duty of Care, on occasion it may be required to notify the Police of behaviour/areas of concern especially where there is believed to be a risk to others. If a criminal investigation is undertaken, the University will facilitate the Police enquiry wherever possible.

Vexatious Complaints: The University treats reports of sexual violence, violent behaviour, harassment, racism and bullying seriously. However, the possibility of malicious or spurious complaints is recognised and any complaints identified as such will be dealt with under the University's Student Disciplinary Policy.

Confidentiality: The University recognises the importance of privacy in cases where sexual violence is alleged. Confidentiality will be maintained as far as possible unless otherwise agreed; however, there may be circumstances – e.g. danger of physical assault – that mean the University will require to disclose certain information to additional University personnel or to third parties on a 'need to know' basis: this is consistent with meeting our Duty of Care obligation.

Reporting: Details of sexual violence are reported and held centrally, subject to the provisions of the Data Protection Act, by the Student Services Manager. Data will be reported periodically to the Senior Management Team; as incidents occur.
